SECTION B

51. Read the passage below carefully and then answer, in full sentence the questions that follow.

Nearly every household in Uganda has the familiar television set. Almost every child has watched children's programme, but the question is; should children's TV programmes be taken off air?

On one hand, the television has been, and is still an endless source of education for not only the young but also the old. Bongo kids and Akili cartoon programme on NTV, which are for younger children, has helped many little boys and girls to learn the general basic knowledge such as the alphabet, basic Maths rules, Science facts and has increased the variety of their vocabulary. Besides academic, children have also learnt skill of acting by watching some of the actors on televisions.

In addition, the infants are also taught many traditional stories on televisions by adults. By so doing, the children learn about their great grandparents, cultures and customs of their tribes. Home learning is another useful TV menu children benefit from especially during situations like holidays and national lockdown due to COVID-19 . Most TV stations feature edutainment for both adults and teenagers. This helps to kill boredom and refresh the mind.

However, sometimes certain television programmes can be a bad influence to children. For example Capitano film on Pearl Magic features stealing, denial and acts of corruption. Violent scenes like kungufu (martial art) could make children think it's good to fight, which may lead to accidents or even death from them fighting at home or in school.

Furthermore, when writing creative stories, children may sometimes copy ideas from the programmes they watch on TV, which might block their imagination. This can permanently affect their creative thinking ability in future.

Therefore adults should closely supervise and guide the girls and the boys on the kind of TV programmes they need to watch while at home.

54. Read the poem below carefully and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

I am the soldier,
Without physical limbs,
But easily capture my enemy
During day and night, I am strong,
And I look for him or her.

I am the soldier,
I have locked down everything, everything,
All states, cities, towns and business alike.
I command total silence all over the world,
As humans mourn and bury their dear ones
I have taken. Ha-ha! Ha-ha!

Weather a European or an African,
I attack you slowly but mercilessly
When my enemy sneezes or coughs The sneeze and spittle become my bullets
That penetrate others' bodies.

I target the T zone,
The eyes, nose and mouth
To dive into my enemy's body cells
And destroy his or her lungs totally
Making breathing so difficult indeed.

My enemy struggles to fight me;
He wears recommended cloth mask, double layered,
Keeps two-metre social distancing rule,
Washes hands with clean water and soap regularly,
Applies sanitizers; Oh! They destroy me completely.

(Kapati Supa)
